IN THIS ISSUE :

ADVANCING INTO THE PAST

Letter from Master Phan Hoang

It was a quarter to one in the afternoon, Ottawa time; a cold day and bright sky.

With some emotion, I pressed the button of the door bell. The door opened almost simultaneously suggesting that someone was watching behind. A frail man of my age who seemed to be unreal appeared on the vague dark background of the room. Also unreal because his appearance brought back my memory of almost fifty years ago, but I recognized him immediately; same man, same bright eyes, and same discrete smile. He had been a professor and a renowned historian in Vietnam. I crossed the threshold like advancing into the past and shook his hand. It was not only the past of fifty years, but also the past of our country that came into my mind...
